GPO Employee Presses Luck, Wins $1,505 in Radio Quiz

A Government Printing Office employee today is $1,505 richer for being able to read his horoscope and a series of favorable events which it presaged.

That's what Carl E. Barber, 57, of 3423 Carpenter street S.E., a perforator at the GPO, took home last night after practically monopolizing a quiz program broadcast over Station WOOL.

A former newspaperman in Memphis, Tenn., he has been attending the "Gunther Quiz of Two Cities" for the past five times. On the program four District residents and four from Baltimore vie for top honors including the super bonus.

Mr. Barber's horoscope said it was a good day to capitalize on favorable influences. So he went

AMG in Reich Speeds Training Program as Top Personnel Leave

By the Associated Press
BERLIN, Nov. 6.—Hit by the loss of some top administrators, the American military government is speeding up its internship program of training young men and women to take over leading executive positions in the occupation administration.

Fifty-six of these interns for career jobs—known as "principal assistants" or P-2s—are working in military government under a program that seeks to enlist 100 annually at starting salaries which average about $3,740 a year.

All sign up for a year's instruction or trial period before they are placed in permanent jobs at headquarters of the office of military government or in one of its branches.

"Practically all of them are doing fine," said Col. James T. Duke, AMG's chief of personnel, "and we certainly need them."

Top Personnel Lost.
"We've lost some top personnel lately—men who were prevailed upon to extend their service here after their original contracts had expired. These were mainly men who had to return to the United States for business and personal reasons and we need a corps of good comers to build up and fill the ranks."

The interns usually are drawn from recent college graduates who have studied subjects useful to military government—especially finance, economics and engineering. Single candidates are signed for a minimum of three years and married men for a minimum of two.

They are rotated through the various divisions of military government, then attend a three-week course at the military government school at Oberammergau in the American zone. Then they work in the various laender (state) government offices of the American zone for a period and for the last five months of their first year are stationed at headquarters in positions they eventually will hold permanently.

Women in Training.
Much interest attaches to the first three women to become interns, who now are working in the office of military government for Berlin sector. They are:

Miss Barbara Seaver, 21, Mar Vista, Calif. She graduated from Stanford University in 1946 with a B. S. in civil engineering. Before coming to Germany she conducted a
